NOTES:

1. In late 1944 and early 1945, reinforcements became available to the Polish Corps through the unconventional methods of recruiting former Polish members of the Wehrmacht, many of whom had been conscripted into the German Army following the invasion of their country, captured by the Allies in various theatres and held in prisoner of war camps. The 2nd Armoured Brigade was expanded into an armoured division, being designated as the 2nd Warsaw Armoured Division. It became operational during April 1945, but did not action prior to the German surrender.
